

Still Waters Christian Fellowship Academy

Jr. High Logic Class

Hello! I'm Anna Loomis, I am a Christian Classically educated young woman and the daughter of Kim Loomis. I would like to further my education through the Circe Teaching Apprenticeship becoming a certified Classical Educator with the intention to homeschool my children someday. I have gone through myriads of logic texts making me very familiar and fond of the art of thinking. I am absolutely thrilled to start my teaching career teaching Logic at Still Waters Christian Fellowship Academy to the Jr. High students.

In this class, students will be introduced to the logical fallacies that surround us every day even the ones we sometimes use ourselves! They will learn to recognize and respond to these fallacies in a logical, thoughtful, and Christ centered way. My goal is to help students understand the power and importance of the words they say and to increase their ability to catch the truth or falsity in what they say and hear. I believe logic is a gift from God that equips us to uphold truth, defend our faith with wisdom and gentleness, discern error, and glorify the Lord, who is truth himself.

I expect all students to read two chapters a week of "The Tuttle Twins Guide to Logical Fallacies" I expect students to create their own scenario of one of the fallacies they read about or share a story from their own life. I expect them to present these weekly and be prepared for review games and activities. These expectations will not change for any student unless their parent directly contacts me as I respect that student's parents are their primary teacher.

Please have a specific notebook for this class and bring it to class along with "The Tuttle Twins Guide to Logical Fallacies" a writing utensil and a Bible!
